

Three Dead and Seventeen Are Wounded or Lost In Assault On Pershing Unit By The Germans

Among The Dead Is Private Thomas A. Enright of Pittsburgh Who Is the only Pennsylvanian

ROLL OF HONOR MEN GIVEN

Washington, Nov. 5.—The first American casualty growing out of a natural clash between the American and German soldiers came like a flash to the homes and heart of our nation today. The War Department gave out the honor roll of those who died, were wounded and missing as the result of a sudden attack upon an American trench salient by Germans on November 3. The Germans attacked under heavy barrage fire. The Americans put up a hard fight.

The casualty list contains 20 names. Three killed, five wounded and twelve missing. It does not state the regiment or division but the American troops were picked men—who were being trained to train others for service—who gave a good account of themselves by not yielding until the last moment. Shortly after the news reached the war department the department was receiving inquiries from anxious homes as to the names of those lost.

News of the clash served to indicate that America's part in the great world struggle is not to be a bloodless one.

The list follows:

Dead—Private Thomas A. Enright, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Private James B. Groh, Evansville, Ind.

Private Merle V. Hay, Glidden, Iowa.

Wounded—Private John J. Fitz, Ludington, Mich.; Private Charles J. Hopkins, Stanton, Texas; Private George L. Box, Alton, Okla.; Private Homer Givens, Clarencedale, Ala.; Private Charles L. Orr, Lyons, Kas.

Captured or missing—Sergeant Edward M. Halyburton, Stone Point, N. C.; Corp. Nicholas Mulhall, Jersey City, N. J.; Corp. Edward Haise, Woodward, Okla.; Private Herchel Godfrey, Chicago; Private Bernard B. Kendall, Roll, Okla.; Private Wm. Grigsby, Louisville, Ky.; Private F. G. Gosoul, Barton, Miss.; Private Dan R. Gallagher, Lexington, Ala.; Private J. O. Lefter, Trelwade, Miss.; Private Henry Langman, Chicago; Private Dewey Clarn, Iowa; Private J. J. Peckon.

An early spectacular raid by the Crown Prince's forces upon the American forces is looked for by War Department officials declared today following news of the first fighting between American forces and Hoeses.

AMERICAN SUBALTERN IS HERO OF STRUGGLE FOR MONS

Left behind helpless by the retreat of the allies' forces, and fallen in the power of an unscrupulous German colonel, the beautiful daughter of a famous French military painter is rescued by a young American, a West Pointer, who has enlisted in the French flying corps. He places her in his war plane and flies with her within the British lines, where he mans the last gun, and single-handedly holds back the enemy until a body of French cavalry arrives.

This romance, which began in a Paris studio before the outbreak of the war, is charmingly and thrillingly pictured in "For France," Greater Vitaphone's Blue Ribbon Feature, which will be the attraction in the Globe Theatre tomorrow. The several battle scenes are drawn absolutely true to actual conditions, more than 1,500 U. S. "regulars" and National Guardsmen taking part. Edward Earl and Miss Betty Howe are featured in the production, and Frank Andrews and Arthur Donaldson also are in the cast.

INJURED IN GYMNASIUM

While attending the Saturday evening class at the Y. M. C. A. for girls, Miss Mary Cooper in jumping from one of the swinging rings missed it and fell heavily to the floor turning her right foot under.

After an examination by a physician it was found that she had torn two of the ligaments and split on of the ankle bones.

An Essay On Virtues Of Republicanism

Frank P. Chorpene Contributes Article On The G. O. P.

If Abraham Lincoln were here he would "speak with the tongues of men and of angels" as of old, concerning the G. O. P.

Justice to whom justice is due, honor to whom honor. This is no time to sheath the Republican party, any more than it is the sword.

Republican, Democracy, we care not for the definition of the words in the dictionary or encyclopedia. We need not go back to the Latin or French root of the words. We are modern. The accepted definition is—the life long policy of the Republican party. That means the principals of the leading party of our Republic ever since Washington's time, the party for which our forefathers toiled, suffered, bled and died, the party our ancestors upheld through thick and thin, the party our grandfathers, fathers and brothers stuck too, abolishing slavery and preserving the union of the states of the grandest country the world ever knew.

We are now engaged in the most momentous struggle the world has ever experienced. Our forces are at the battle front ready to spring into action at a moment's warning. Our nations sons may even now be spilling their blood.

Our people at home are organized and successfully working for their protection.

Thus the preservation of our Republican model of government is placed in the hands of the people.

Let us prove that our party is as worthy as in the past by voting for all the Republican candidates on November 6.

Patriotism stands in every man's door way.

A vote for the whole Republican ticket will support the boys in the trenches.

Every vote for the boys on the Republican ticket means we are upholding the efforts of the boys at the cantonments.

Vote the ballot from top to bottom for Republicanism and the boys on the border.

I can hear the sound of a harp's soft strings, as it is carried upon the air—an echo from the battlefields of Europe. The vibrations reach the ear drum and the boys in battle line are singing: "Yes, we'll rally round the flag, boys, we'll rally once again, shouting the battle cry of freedom—a challenge to the time when the G. O. P. will be in power again.

By supporting our party we pave the way for 1919 presidential election.

Down with the traitor and up with the star; that mute front door evidence of the boys at the front.

We must talk to the voters between now and November 6. Vote right from now until 1919 and the ones who fled our ranks will flock back again to the party of justice, liberty, freedom and real Democracy—that which is our own, where we elect our sovereign ruler by indirect vote of the people.

We must turn out and vote. Then in 1919 each one of us can say: "I came, I saw I conquered."

When the boys come marching back again, they will be welcomed by the Republican party of temperance, justice, mere patriotism and heroism—the real life of the homes of the mothers of men.

God bless the G. O. P.—the party of the people, for the people, by the people—the real breeder of true democracy, the party of liberty and freedom always.

Patriotically yours,
FRANK P. CHORPENING

AUTO OVERTURNS INJURING TWO OCCUPANTS

Miss Laura Bailey of Clearfield and John Dale of Johnstown in Serious Condition as Result

A most serious automobile accident took place between Wallacetown and Blue Ball yesterday afternoon in which the participants, who are well known young people were painfully injured.

John Dale, of Johnstown and who has business interests in this vicinity was driving the car in which Miss Caroline Stott of Brinsbin, Miss Laura Bailey of Clearfield and Miss Pearl McMurray of Clearfield were riding. They left Clearfield late in the afternoon for Philipsburg on a pleasure ride.

On the flat between Wallacetown and Blue Ball, Miss Stott took the wheel to pilot the machine along the highway but lost control on the slippery road and the machine suddenly swerved and capsized piling the occupants to the ground. Miss Bailey and Mr. Dale were extricated from the wreckage with some difficulty.

Miss Stott, aside from being shaken up and frightened was not injured. Miss McMurray was bruised and shocked so that she is unable to follow her work today. Miss Bailey is in the Clearfield Hospital badly bruised and with three ribs broken. Whether there are more serious internal injuries has not yet been determined but it is hoped and thought that nothing more serious will develop. Mr. Dale is a patient at the Cottage hospital at Philipsburg.

Inquiry at both hospitals this afternoon elicited the information that both victims of the accident are improving.

Whooping Cough Takes 152 Lives In Month

Birth in State Exceed Deaths by nearly Nine Thousand

Harrisburg, Nov. 5.—Whooping cough played a Kaiser-like part among Pennsylvania children last August and took 152 lives, according to figures given out today by the State Department of Health. The number is larger than the usual monthly toll from this disease. Another disease which many parents regard lightly—measles—took 114 lives during the same month. Diphtheria, viewed as a cold weather ailment rather than one of summer, killed 97. Twenty-one deaths occurred from infantile paralysis. Total deaths were 16,733 during the month and births were 19,499.

Three Smallpox Cases at Blue Ball

Health Officers on the Ground And Rigid Quarantine Established

Three well defined cases of smallpox have been reported to the health authorities from Blue Ball and a fourth case is believed to be developing. The patients reported are Sherman Smeal, Raymond Spral and Thomas C. Baughman. The Smeal represent different families. Dr. Heaton, of Philipsburg, is in charge and Medical Inspector Dr. S. C. Stewart and Health Officer M. L. McQuinn are on duty to see that the patients are properly isolated and under quarantine. The cases are believed to be an extension of the Philipsburg case reported a few days ago.

LARGE INCREASE IN ATTENDANCE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Personal work and General Advertising done Results in more People at Bible Study

COMMITTEE IS PLEASED

Go To Sunday School Day was a rousing success in our city. The work of the canvassers was not in vain. In every home in Clearfield yesterday morning there was a memory of the visit of the people who were on the invitation committee to ask people to come to Sunday school. Hundreds of people responded to the invitation. The campaign for a larger Sunday school attendance was most thoroughly prepared and carried out. In addition to the personal solicitation the general committee of all the Sunday schools wisely took up the matter of newspaper support and advertising and used a page advertisement in each Clearfield daily paper.

Helped Elsewhere

Members of the General Committee will be glad to know that their newspaper advertising helped in other communities throughout the county. The Progress which has a circulation of approximately fourteen hundred copies in surrounding towns learns today of the effect of the page of advertising on Sunday schools throughout the county. Each place we have inquired report an increased attendance and much comment on the new idea of advertising the best business in the world—the King's Business.

It will be of interest to local people to learn that the Go-To-Sunday-School Day movement was started in the state of Kentucky two years ago by the Rev. Dr. George A. Jordan, Secretary of the Kentucky Sabbath School Association, whose daughter is the wife of A. Harry Lee, Jr., of Clearfield.

We append a few figures on local Sunday school attendance:

West Side Methodist church attendance 116, is usually about 315.

Trinity Methodist attendance 600, is usually about 555.

English Lutheran attendance 254, is usually about 195.

Presbyterian attendance 487, is usually about 325.

Baptist attendance 102, is usually about 85.

Eleventh Street Methodist attendance 266, is usually about 175.

Parade Baptist attendance 46, is usually about 35.

St. Andrew P. E. attendance 59, is usually about 48.

United Brethren attendance 147, is usually about 115.

The Reedsville Chapel, the A. M. E. Church and the Salvation Army all report large increases in their attendance.

At Woodland the campaign resulted in a 60 per cent increase in attendance at Methodist Episcopal Sunday school while at the United Brethren church a noticeable increase was had.

All New York Wou'd Mayors Claim Victory

Socialist Candidate is For an Immediate Peace Proposal

New York, Nov. 5.—Maurice Hill, an American was Socialist candidate for Mayor of New York, announced this afternoon that he would poll 250,000 votes in tomorrow's election. Socialist headquarters based on a systematic canvass of the boroughs. Hillquit's platform is for "immediate peace negotiations."

Mitchell headquarters declared that Mitchell would receive a majority of from 25,000 to 50,000.

"Unhappy Hill candidate, Wm. Bennett, Republican, denounced 'Boss' Murphy on the sidewalk in front of the building while Murphy was in conference with his leaders this afternoon. Democrats declare that John S. Haylar will win by a large majority, but they would not say how many.

STATE POLITICS OF LITTLE OR NO INTEREST

Pittsburg, However, Has a Hot Mayoralty Contest to be Fought Out Tomorrow

CENTRE COUNTY TAKES PRIZE

Harrisburg, Nov. 5.—Pennsylvania voters tomorrow will elect 26 common pleas judges; three orphans' court judges; twenty-two associate, or lay, judges; mayors and councilmen in fifteen cities; councilmen and other officials, but no mayor, in the other twenty-one cities, and hundreds and hundreds of local officials of all sorts. In numerous cases, however, "election" will be merely nominal. Many candidates have no opposition and the election will be simply a ratification of the primary vote.

For by-elections, this year has created unusual interest because of the hot municipal fights in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton. The contests in those cities have resolved themselves mainly into fights between the Penrose-McNichol and Bruunbaugh-Vare factions for control of the Republican organization. Results in those cities may go far toward indicating what is likely to happen in next spring's primaries. Harrisburg and some other cities have similar fights but with lines not so tightly drawn.

Philadelphia and Lancaster are the only cities electing councilmen by the old ward system. All other cities elect at large. The new third class city of Bethlehem will elect its first city government tomorrow. Important bond issues go before voters in numerous districts.

Twelve common pleas judge candidates are unopposed, and one orphans' court candidate—Judge James Clark Work, Paleta. Six candidates for associate judge, seven mayoralty candidates and numerous other aspirants also are without opposition.

Clarence O. Morris, running for district attorney in Armstrong, probably holds the nomination championship. He is the candidate of the Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Prohibition and Washington parties with no other nominees. Several candidates in different counties have the same sort of a cinch but haven't quite so many nominations.

Centre county is another leader of the league. It has nothing to elect but two jury commissioners and has only two candidates. Cameron has five officials to elect and has only one candidate for each.

Some of the very hot fights probably will not be settled until the soldier vote comes home. Commissioners appointed by the governor are on the ground in all concentration camps which have Pennsylvania soldiers; other commissioners have gone "over there" to take the vote right out of the trenches. It is said that there are about 60,000 Pennsylvania voters in the volunteer and national armies.

Segregation of Negro Is Unconstitutional

Supreme Court Declares Invalid A Louisville, Ky., Ordinance

Washington, Nov. 5.—The Supreme Court today declared unconstitutional the Louisville, Kentucky, ordinance which segregated the negroes from the whites. Similar ordinances in Baltimore, St. Louis, Richmond and other cities will be affected. The Kentucky state court ruling was reversed. The court held that the ordinance was invalid because it was arbitrary to certain classes of citizens. The situation is serious, but the court, however, is powerless to remedy conditions, the court said.

PRESIDENT GOING HOME TO VOTE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—President Wilson, accompanied by Secretary Tamm, will take a hurried trip to New Jersey tomorrow on account of the election. Ever since the day of his university presidency Mr. Wilson has returned his voting residence at Princeton and has never failed to return regularly to exercise his right of suffrage. Tomorrow he will cast his ballot in the New Jersey legislature.

TOWN EVACUAT'D WHEN BIG PLANT IS BLOWN UP

New Kensington Aluminum Powder Plant Wrecked with Large List of Killed and Injured

MADE GOODS FOR THE ALLIES

New Kensington, Pa., Nov. 5.—With the explosion of 180,000 pounds of aluminum powder in the Aluminum Company of America's plant the whole town evacuated at noon today. The loss of many homes is expected. There is no way to fight the fire as water on it will cause the powder to explode.

The population of the town is 13,000. The casualty list among the 3,000 employees numbers 50. Several dead and a number injured.

No official of the plant will commit himself relative to the cause of the explosion. Police, however, were frank in their expression that it was a well laid plot to destroy the works.

Three distinct explosions shook the plant at nine o'clock this morning. Many of the employees were hurled from their position at work.

One man was killed outright. Two men died while being hurried to the city General Hospital. At noon two men were reported to have died at the hospital.

The name of the plant is the United States Aluminum Company, a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America. For several months bronze powder has been manufactured in the plant for the United States and her allies to be used for star-shells which are used at night by the belligerents to light up No Man's and the surrounding country on the fighting front.

LORD MACHINE TAKES FIRE

A real little near-thing occurred at the Court House corner this morning about ten o'clock.

Mr. J. S. Hoyt cranked up his little "Lizard" and was about to travel when the flames began to shoot out of the engine hood in all directions. Dirt and dirt thrown on the flames were of no avail. Finally a hand fire extinguisher was brought from McKin's store and soon had the fire under control.

The machine was not damaged and living up to the general reputation of the make, after cleaning out the dust and dirt was cranked and went on its way.

DuBois Paper Sees A Reason Liquor Dealers Attitude in the Democratic Campaign

HOTLY CONTESTED CAMPAIGN

Tomorrow's county election close the hottest campaign ever held in this county for the office of District Attorney. In addition a Sheriff is to be elected, but that is proceeding along the usual lines.

The Democratic candidate for District Attorney has filed that office one term, and at the close of term will have received $12,000 salary, which should pay a man with enough ability to do the work.

has, however, had to employ lawyers to try nearly all his cases that the county has had to pay $4,800 to have the work done which is hired to do. As a matter of fact the present District Attorney has been before a jury an average of ten cases a year since he assumed position. He has been having his law work done all the time by attorneys, almost all of whom have been paid by being later assigned by him as council in murder cases.

The liquor dealers insist that Welch be re-elected because they minister when the Mead case and Stellar case are considered, and some of the reasons for their attitude and their alliance in this fight.

Another reason for the liquor dealers' attitude is found in the campaign of John P. Short for burgess of Clearfield. Short is one of the leaders of the Democratic party and Welch close friend and campaign manager and editor of a Clearfield paper. He is a pronounced "wet" and very close to the liquor dealers. Short's campaign is on the platform to clean up the sideboard clubs, so that the "boys" may have more profits. This may help to explain why the liquor dealers are so strong for the Short-Welch combination.

Arnold has pledged himself to do the work of the office himself, and to save the taxpayers the $4800 paid out for extra lawyers. He also pledged himself to an honest, fair and unswerving administration. (DuBois Courier.)

FORTHWITH COMING MUSICAL EVENT

The visit of England's great organist, Gatty Sellars, to the Lutheran church on Friday, Nov. 9th, is arousing wide-spread interest.

Gatty Sellars, the great English organist-composer, was born in 1872 and received his training at Peterborough Cathedral, and from a well known professor of the Royal Academy of Music, London. It was there being heard in Switzerland, however, that he obtained his first engagement at the Queen's Hall, London, concert, appearing with Agnes Nichols, Kirkby Lunn and Sir Charles Santley. His after appearances in Europe were with Albini, Busoni, Marchesi, and in the same series of concerts as Paderewski, Kubelik and Dr. Hans Richter, etc. Well known as a composer, one of his compositions was selected as a test piece at the National Band Contest, at the Crystal Palace, for performance by the massed bands of 3,000 performers. Mr. Sellars is a son of the Rev. S. Sellars, his mother being formerly a Miss Gatty, a name well known in musical circles through the reputation of Sir Alfred Scott Gatty, Principal King of Arms. His program is the most unique in the annals of musical history of America.

FLAG MAKERS FACE CHARGE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—A score of the leading flag manufacturers in different parts of the United States have been summoned to appear before the Federal Trade Commission this week to answer to charges of making exorbitant profits out of American patriotism by concerted illegal action to arise flag prices. The charges are a result of a recent investigation made by the commission into the sudden rise in flag prices after the declaration of war. This investigation showed that in some cases 300 per cent profit was made.

Take this tip from father: When Republican corporation men and total abstainers find a reason to support a "wet" Democratic candidate for Burgess there is "something rotten in Denmark."

PREPARE FOR TAX PAYMENTS

Two Liberty Loans have been floated with no inconvenient dislocation in the world of finance. Within five months the country has poured five billions into the Treasury without raising the fiscal temperature. This is due in no small measure to the accommodations which banks have so freely given to the purchasers of Liberty Bonds, enabling many of them to pay for their bonds over a period of several months. Next June, however, when the income and other special taxes of the new revenue bill become due, a sum equal to one-half of these two loans will have to be provided and paid in, practically all at once. If any provision being made for that contingency?

There is every indication that the Republican candidates are going to win tomorrow from Burgess of Clearfield up to the office of District Attorney and Sheriff.

Messrs. Arnold, Norris and Chase have put up an admirable campaign. They have worked unceasingly, none of them depending in the least on any corporate influence, organization or institution to put them across. All of them have made an effort to see every voter in this County and they have succeeded to a greater degree than any other candidate ever has.

There has been no underhanded stories circulated by these parties or their supporters. In fact they have squelched several of those on their rounds among the voters. There has been no "cash fund" to put these candidates into office to be the tool of any individual or interest.

The voters generally have admired their pluck and persistence. It is not an uncommon thing to hear a voter say that they are going to vote for Norris because he has worked hard enough to deserve the job. It is a common thing to hear a voter say that Arnold is his man because he has the ability and the backbone to fill the office of District Attorney.

The voters of Clearfield are going to support John M. Chase for Burgess because they do not want a factional Government. In Chase's opponent is a Democrat but belongs to a faction of the Democratic party that has no more time for the other faction in that party than they have for a Republican. The Burgess has many offices to fill by appointment and it would be a dangerous thing indeed to have out-of-control offices filled with members of any one faction. If the Democratic party was united in Clearfield it would be quite a different thing.

With Mr. Chase as Burgess all factions and parties will be represented in appointments because with him it will be a case of good men instead of factional loyalty.

Wesley P. Norris FOR SHERIFF

The Workingman's Candidate

To the Voters of Clearfield County:

In this closing of a heated campaign I desire to advise the voters what I stand for in public life and as a citizen.

FIRST—I stand for everything that marks the good citizen in private and public affairs.

SECOND—I stand for the perpetuity of this government, ready to assist in its defense and support the President, but I abhor the idea exploded in the public address of the Democratic county chairman, that voting for Mr. Gorman for sheriff is a paramount obligation that the citizen owes the President. Such assumption belittles and reflects upon the high office, which should know no politics in time of war, but measure every man by his loyalty and his fealty to the flag of our country. I appeal to the judgment of those who have known my family if we have ever been slackers when duty calls.

THIRD—I stand on the broad principle of equal rights to all, and special privileges to none. The poor man looks as good to me as the rich; the laboring man looks as good to me as the professional man, and the free and full discharge of every duty, unincumbered by caste, clique or the sinister motives of men, shall be my highest ambition.

The above principles constitute my platform, and I leave it to the good citizens of Clearfield county for judgment. I close the fight without enmity towards any one. I have uttered no harsh words, or criticized those who have opposed me; I have tried to be fair and hope I have made you my friend and I ask for your support—and "with charity for all and malice towards none," I submit my candidacy to your care and keeping.

Sincerely yours,

WESLEY P. NORRIS.

Ribbons in Afternoon Gowns

Many things are premeditated and by several authorities in style, all acting together, to create a fashion. Others just happen when some original and independent designer has an inspiration and works it out without regard to what other designers are doing. Once presented a good idea is seized and made much of and this is what has happened this season in the ribbon-trimmed gowns. Some one used wide braided ribbon in a stunning matron-of-honor gown, and while more ribbon to drape the new dress of a debutante, and set the ball rolling. Now afternoon as well as evening dresses display ribbons in their clever manner.

A beautiful afternoon dress in which plain satin ribbon plays the most important part, shows that a good designer has recognized this fact: that a ribbon, with its endless possibilities of being used in a new way, is a good thing to have in a wardrobe. The undergarment is most easily changed in a new dress of ribbon, and the ribbon is drawn to the bottom of the skirt where it is fastened to the garter. The ribbon is then drawn up to the waist, and the dress is fastened at the waist. The ribbon is then drawn up to the waist, and the dress is fastened at the waist. The ribbon is then drawn up to the waist, and the dress is fastened at the waist.

Child's Hat.

Decidedly original and charming is a child's hat in the new style, with a touch of diminutive meshwork in the crown. The hat is made of a light material, and is fastened with a small bow. The hat is made of a light material, and is fastened with a small bow. The hat is made of a light material, and is fastened with a small bow.

The Hat-Brim.

It is not a woman that is the most important part of a hat, but the brim. The brim is the most important part of a hat, and it is the most important part of a hat. The brim is the most important part of a hat, and it is the most important part of a hat.

STOP PAYING OUT SO MUCH MONEY

Court House figures show almost $5000 paid out in extra counsel fees by the present District Attorney in addition to the handsome salary of several thousand dollars which he has received.

ARNOLD WILL STOP IT

His platform rings true. It is straight to the point on every issue. It can no longer be said that his platform is not known and that he may continue to hire extra attorneys. Here is his signed statement. Read it.

To The Voters of Clearfield County:--

The issues of the District Attorney fight are too well known to be affected by the statement of any candidate.

And whether the present District Attorney is entitled to two terms does not rest on the records of the District Attorneys for the past forty years, but on the record of the office holder running for re-election.

I have lived in Duois for a quarter of a century. During that time I have tried to make my word good, and to be square.

If I am elected District Attorney I give my word:—

That I will not be subservient to, or in any degree controlled by any man or men, or any clique, faction or organization.

That I go into office unpledged on any matter, or upon the conduct of the duties of that office.

That I, myself, will be District Attorney. That I will not at the tax payers' expense employ lawyers to do the work for which I am paid, nor will I have Assistant District Attorneys appointed either by the case or by the year.

That my election to the office of District Attorney shall constitute a contract between me and the people, by the terms of which the District Attorney is bound to act for the common good of all, and to do himself the work for which he is paid. No extra expense should, or will be put upon the other party to the contract without its consent. To place upon the people such extra expense as for the District Attorney to raise his own salary, already generously fixed at $3023.00 per year. In the past four years this raise of salary has amounted to over $1200.00 each year, or two-fifths of the yearly salary fixed by law. If the law intended the yearly salary to be two-fifths larger, the Act of Assembly would so provide.

If a farmer takes a horse to be shod he expects to pay the blacksmith to do the job. He should not have to pay several more blacksmiths called in to help out. The man who takes the job should see it through.

In conclusion I want to say that I have conducted my campaign in a manner that is both clean and fair. And that no printed or spoken word of mine has injected personalities therein, nor savored of throwing mud.

(Signed) JOHN C. ARNOLD.

Best of all, a vote for John Arnold tomorrow is a vote for a man who can do the job and will do the job. He has the ability, the courage and the determination to go through with anything he tackles.

He is your candidate.

Fire Prevention Day!

Less Than a Year Ago The Clearfield Opera House Block
Burned---A Warning Beacon Against Carelessness

Men who were ruined in the big fires of Philipsburg, DuBois, Woodland, Grampian and other towns in this locality couldn't see how such conflagrations could be---but carelessness and calamity combined and they resulted.

Are you doing your part toward fire prevention?---a blaze that wipes out a building or a few blocks and destroys your property is just as bad for you as a whole town in ashes.

Let Fire Prevention Day remind you to see to it that your premises do not invite fire, and that if fire comes you are fully protected.

You Pay For "Carelessness" of Others

Every fire in this section costs you money. You pay your share of the "other fellows" fire loss---and he pays a share of yours---in Clearfield, Woodland, Curwensville, Philipsburg and every town in this section.

Yet fire insurance rates in this section have been lowered on an average of one-fourth since 1893. You can help bring them down.

Don't wait for an inspector. Do your own inspecting. Look in your basement---your attic---your storerooms---your shipping rooms---and wherever rubbish might accumulate. Clean it out, or order it removed.

Are You Properly Insured Against Fire?

In spite of all past experiences fires continue. There is an average of three hundred fires a year in this section.

Have you re-valued your property and revised your fire insurance? Do you know that it will cost you far more than the first cost to replace many things you own?

In other words, now that your property is worth more, does your insurance show it? Conservative business judgment suggests that adequate fire loss protection is as important as fire prevention.

Suggestion: Get out your fire insurance policies today---and write or telephone one of these insurance agents for information that will benefit you. See coupon below.

IF BACK HURTS
BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your Kidneys Occasionally If
You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headache, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and to stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Miss Mary Mariana and Peter Lippert were married at ten o'clock this morning in the St. Francis Catholic Church by Father M. A. Ryan.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin and lace and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

After the wedding the guests departed to the bride's home where there was a sumptuous repast prepared and a fine celebration for the young couple.

The bride and groom are both estimable residents of Clearfield and are wished much happiness in their new life.

CHRIST CONQUEROR

Ultimate Victory Will Crown the World Work of the Son of God.

"He went forth conquering and to conquer."—Rev. 6:2.

Time was when the church dwelt almost exclusively upon the sufferings and sorrows of Christ, and overlooked his majesty and glory. It thought of him as the lamb of God, and forgot to think of him as "the lion of the tribe of Judah;" it thought of him as a weary man before his foes, and forgot to think of him as a mighty conqueror, who possesses invincible power. In the book of Revelation he is represented in the latter aspect. He is not represented as coming to his kingdom. He is already a king. On his head are many crowns. Once he was scornfully rejected by the people, who cried, "The Crucified!" may his name and memory be blotted out." Now everything is changed. He rides forth "conquering and to conquer."

To this vision of Christ it behooves us to turn in the present day when the larger portion of the world is convulsed by fightings without and fears within. He is the one upon whom the hopes of humanity center; the one who is at the head of the forces which makes for the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth.

He is represented as taking the aggressive. Not satisfied with acting on the defensive, he goes forth. His army is not one of occupation, but of aggression. His presence as its leader and commander is inspiring. Someone has said that an army of sheep would have been formidable led by Napoleon; for he would have transformed them into lions. So we, catching the spirit of our leader, became heroic, and go forth with him to meet the great world struggles without fear.

He goes forth to conquer. This idea is put in the strongest possible form, "conquering and to conquer;" that is, victory succeeding victory. He triumphs over all oppositions, but not at once. Many a fierce struggle is called for before the forces of evil are vanquished. But the cause of righteousness will win in the end.

We follow a leader who has never been beaten. He came into this world to destroy the power of sin. It was a gigantic struggle, and at first he seemed to be baffled. Looked at from the human point of view his death was a failure; but it was in reality a victory. By it he vanquished sin and death.

Through all his earthly life he was a victor. He conquered disease; he ruled the forces of nature; he cast out evil spirits; he delivered men from the power of evil. Never once did he go down to defeat. The work of conquest which he began upon earth he is now carrying on with greater power.

The power by which Christ conquers is the same as that by which he conquered when here in the flesh. He conquers by the power of truth and love. His weapon of conquest is the cross.

In the epistle to the Hebrews Jesus is represented as making "one sacrifice of sin forever," and then sitting down at God's right hand, "from henceforth expecting until his enemies be made his footstool" (Chap. 10:12-13). His expectation of coming victory was based upon his sacrifice for sin. He knew of no greater power than the cross. It was the highest revelation of divine suffering, redeeming love, consummated. No greater power unto salvation can be brought to bear upon the hearts of men. It is God's utmost.

This is the weapon which we today are to wield in the battle for righteousness. "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but spiritual." They may appear to be feeble, but they are "mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds." The cross is no failure. Following the crucified we follow a conquering king.—Rev. James M. Campbell, D. D.

CHRIST'S SUPREME SACRIFICE

His Earthly Life, Strong and Beautiful, Was a Journey Toward Death on the Cross.

Our Lord's life on earth, strong and beautiful though it was, was really at the same time his procedure toward death. He lived as one laying down his life, not merely in one great sacrifice at the close, but from step to step along his whole earthly history. With no touch of the morbid or the fanatical, yet his course, in practice, had to be one of self-improvement, of loneliness, of acquaintance with energetic hostility of sin and sinners. It had to be so if it was to be faithful. He knew not where to lay his head; he endured the contradiction of sinners against himself; he came unto his own, and his own received him not. Even his friends, whom he loved, and who loved him in their imperfect way, did not love him wisely or magnanimously, and constantly became occasions of temptation which had to be resisted. Pain and trial were the inevitable characters of the work given him to do. It lay in his calling to put a strong and faithful negative on the natural desire for safety, for happiness, for congenial society and surroundings, for free and unembarrassed life. All this he had steadily to postpone to a period beyond the grave, and meanwhile make his way to the final crisis, at which, under a mysterious burden of extreme sorrow, accepted as the Savior's proper portion, he died for our sins.—Robert Baly.

MOODS OF WARTIME

How the Psalmist Voices Comfort, Cheer, Strength and Courage to Human Heart.

"Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee."—Ps. 4:22.

It is one of the marks of the inspiration of the Psalms that we turn quite naturally to their splendid phrases to find expression for our deepest thoughts. When our hearts are stirred, the right words do not always come to us. But we find them in the Psalter. And, if I mistake not, there is in the words of the fifty-fifth Psalm a quite extraordinary appropriateness to our thoughts in these great days of alternate hope and fear, and anger and grief, and pride and patience. It is a Psalm for time of war; it is war that the Psalmist had in his thoughts. And it seems to express the varying moods which we observe in our neighbors, and of which we are half conscious in ourselves, as we try to keep our mental sanity, our Christian faith. The Psalm begins and ends with prayer, for it is the outpouring of his heart's desires by a godly man; but he passes through various phases of thought as he prays—some worthy of the highest Christian saintliness—some not so worthy, for he had the weaknesses common to our poor humanity.

"Hear my prayer." So he begins. It is the inevitable petition of an unquiet soul. "Hear my prayer." But the singer is afraid, for the danger is near. "The ungodly cometh on so fast; they are minded to do some mischief, so maliciously are they set against me." He is faithless, he doubts the ultimate issue. "My heart is disquieted within me—fearfulness and trembling are common upon me." And he would fain escape from the horror and misery of it all. "Oh, for the wings of a dove, for then would I flee away and be at rest. I would get me away far off . . . to the wilderness, if need be. 'I would make haste to escape.' " "Oh, for the wings of a dove!" The words, when set to the luscious music of Mendelssohn, charm the ear, and they find a response in that desire for peace and rest which is the emotion of every tender and kindly heart. "Oh, for the wings of a dove!" Yet that is not the Christian attitude to the stern realities of life. It is a mood through which our thoughts may pass. But it is an unworthy mood. It is not the mood of faith, and another Psalm tells us so. "In the Lord I put my trust; how say ye then to my soul that she should flee as a bird unto the hill?"

And so we pass on to the best thought of all—the thought which is the true key to the brave old Psalmist's courage and hope. With it he begins—"Hear my prayer," for that is the prayer of faith as well as the prayer of fearfulness. To it he passes on—"As for me, I will call upon God, and the Lord shall save me. In the evening and morning and at noonday will I pray, and that instantly; and he shall hear my voice." For this is the mood of prayer, of the consecration of all high endeavor, of the hallowing of pain. "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee." Here is no counsel for a weakling or a craven, but of a brave man who has faced the worst. "Cast thy burden upon the Lord." It does not mean that we shall leave the part of danger to others, and rest in security the while, craven-hearted. It is not to sing, "Oh, for the wings of a dove, that there may be a way of escape." Nor does it mean that, as we fight, we curse the while. To fight without cursing in the cause of righteousness is to follow in the steps of the great Captain of the Christian soul. And so it means that we shall best fortify our spirits by prayer.

And for us all, even while our hearts leap as we read of the deeds done by those of our own blood and speech—for us all, the Psalmist's message is, "Cast thy burden upon the Lord." This is his final mood; this is the issue of his thought. Cast thy burden here. Thus only can we stay the throbbing of our pulse and anchor our souls upon a rock. The way may be long before we reach the end of the journey. It must be a way of pain. But the way of the Cross is the way of light. And this is the way of the great crusade.—By the Archbishop of Dublin.

HER HANDS MADE BEAUTIFUL
An Old Legend That Reveals That the True Source of Beauty Is in the Heart.
There is an old legend concerning three young women, who disputed as to who had the most beautiful hands. One dipped her hands into the pure running stream, another picked berries until her fingers were pink, a third gathered roses until her hands were made sweet by their fragrance. An aged woman, careworn and decrepit, leaning upon her staff, came, asking a gift, but all alike refused her. A fourth young woman, making no claims to beauty, ministered to her needs. The aged woman then said: "It is not the hand that is dipped in the brook nor the hand made red with berries, nor the hand garlanded or perfumed with roses, that is most beautiful, but the hand that giveth to the poor." As she thus spoke, her mask fell off, her staff was cast aside, her wrinkles vanished, and she stood before them, an angel of God. . . . It matters not whether the hand gives in money, or in kindly acts; in some cases money would be quite useless, while kindness is priceless.—Selected.

FOUND NEW USE FOR PULPIT

Sexton's Wife Was Greatly Excited When Parson Arrived Unexpectedly to Hold Services.

Canon Shearme, in his "Lively Recollections," tells a good story of a brother clergyman in a remote parish who turned up unexpectedly to hold a service at one of two churches he served in. Grantly to the reverend gentleman's surprise, the sexton's wife who acted as caretaker, appeared great by troubled at his unexpected advent on the scene, begging him if he must hold the service that day at all events to forego the sermon.

Naturally he inquired the reason why.

"Therupon," writes Mr. Shearme, "the old woman became more vehement and excited."

"Passon, passon, dear, if you must preach, will you preach from the readin' desk?"

"But why?" asked he. "Is there anything in the pulpit?"

"Aw durn me! Passon dear, don't ee go near it whatever. Oh, why did you ever come today?"

"She clung desperately to his coat tails, beseeching him to go no farther. 'Come, Sally, I insist upon seeing what is in the pulpit!'"

"Well, passon—but there, I don't hardly know how to tell ee. Well, passon, if you must know, I've got the turkey 'en in the pulpit, and he wunt 'atch out afore next Sunday!"

TELLING TIME AS YOU RUN

Nashville (Tenn.) Has Installed Clock for Those Who Wait Till Last Minute to Get Anywhere.

If you are in the habit of being late for work, or are in the habit of waiting for the last minute in which to catch your train, you know how you scan the corner clocks as you fly by.

Nashville, Tenn., appreciated the need of an efficient timepiece that could be seen at considerable distance, so that instead of having the usual circular dial with revolving hands the time is shown by white figures, 28 inches high, mounted on endless flexible bands, which move across the face of the clock, changing every 60 seconds. These figures show at a greater distance and are read much quicker than the hands of an ordinary clock. At night the figures are illuminated.

It is operated by a system of weights, aggregating several hundred pounds, which are automatically wound up by electrical power. There were many mechanical difficulties to confront and to be solved on original lines, for this clock as it is has had no predecessor.

Napoleon's Divorce.

Napoleon's divorce, a civil act of the empire, was pronounced before the grand council held in the Tuilleries on December 15, 1808, and the next day the senate confirmed it. To remove all religious scruples, the court of the bishop of Paris met and pronounced the divorce, with Josephine null, this action being taken on January 14, 1810. The civil marriage of Bonaparte and Maria Louisa of Austria, April 1, 1810, was witnessed by the college of cardinals, save only two who were too infirm to be brought to Paris. The attitude of the church was manifest at the religious marriage. Not a cardinal was present, although they said that their absence was an empty form due only to the circumstances that Pius VII had not approved the divorce.

Three Dead and Seventeen Are Wounded or Lost In Assault On Pershing Unit By The Germans

Among The Dead Is Private Thomas A. Enright of Pittsburgh Who Is the only Pennsylvanian

ROLL OF HONOR MEN GIVEN

Washington, Nov. 5.—The first American casualty growing out of a natural clash between the American and German soldiers came like a flash to the homes and heart of our nation today. The War Department gave out the honor roll of those who died, were wounded and missing as the result of a sudden attack upon an American trench salient by Germans on November 3. The Germans attacked under heavy barrage fire. The Americans put up a hard fight.

The casualty list contains 20 names. Three killed, five wounded and twelve missing. It does not state the regiment or division but the American troops were picked men—who were being trained to train others for service—who gave a good account of themselves by not yielding until the last moment. Shortly after the news reached the war department the department was receiving inquiries from anxious homes as to the names of those lost.

News of the clash served to indicate that America's part in the great world struggle is not to be a bloodless one.

The list follows:

Dead—Private Thomas A. Enright, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Private James B. Groh, Evansville, Ind.

Private Merle V. Hay, Glidden, Iowa.

Wounded—Private John J. Fitz, Ludington, Mich.; Private Charles J. Hopkins, Stanton, Texas; Private George L. Box, Alton, Okla.; Private Homer Givens, Clarencedale, Ala.; Private Charles L. Orr, Lyons, Kas.

Captured or missing—Sergeant Edward M. Halyburton, Stoney Point, N. C.; Corp. Nicholas Mulhall, Jersey City, N. J.; Corp. Edward Haise, Woodward, Okla.; Private Herchel Godfrey, Chicago; Private Bernard B. Kendall, Roll, Okla.; Private Wm. Grigsby, Louisville, Ky.; Private F. G. Gosoul, Barton, Miss.; Private Dan R. Gallagher, Lexington, Ala.; Private J. O. Lefter, Trelawne, Miss.; Private Henry Langman, Chicago; Private Dewey Clarn, Iowa; Private J. J. Peckon.

An early spectacular raid by the Crown Prince's forces upon the American forces is looked for by War Department officials declared today following news of the first fighting between American forces and Hoeses.

AMERICAN SUBALTERN IS HERO OF STRUGGLE FOR MONS

Left behind helpless by the retreat of the allies' forces, and fallen in the power of an unscrupulous German colonel, the beautiful daughter of a famous French military painter is rescued by a young American, a West Pointer, who has enlisted in the French flying corps. He places her in his war plane and flies with her within the British lines, where he mans the last gun, and single-handedly holds back the enemy until a body of French cavalry arrives.

This romance, which began in a Paris studio before the outbreak of the war, is charmingly and thrillingly pictured in "For France," Greater Vitaphone's Blue Ribbon Feature, which will be the attraction in the Globe Theatre tomorrow. The several battle scenes are drawn absolutely true to actual conditions, more than 1,500 U. S. "regulars" and National Guardsmen taking part. Edward Earl and Miss Betty Howe are featured in the production, and Frank Andrews and Arthur Donaldson also are in the cast.

After an examination by a physician it was found that she had torn two of the ligaments and split on of the ankle bones.

An Essay On Virtues Of Republicanism

Frank P. Chorpene Contributes Article On The G. O. P.

If Abraham Lincoln were here he would "speak with the tongues of men and of angels" as of old, concerning the G. O. P.

Justice to whom justice is due, honor to whom honor. This is no time to sheath the Republican party, any more than it is the sword.

Republican, Democracy, we care not for the definition of the words in the dictionary or encyclopedia. We need not go back to the Latin or French root of the words. We are modern. The accepted definition is—the life long policy of the Republican party. That means the principals of the leading party of our Republic ever since Washington's time, the party for which our forebearers toiled, suffered, bled and died, the party our ancestors upheld through thick and thin, the party our grandfathers, fathers and brothers stuck too, abolishing slavery and preserving the union of the states of the grandest country the world ever knew.

We are now engaged in the most momentous struggle the world has ever experienced. Our forces are at the battle front ready to spring into action at a moment's warning. Our nations sons may even now be spilling their blood.

Our people at home are organized and successfully working for their protection.

Thus the preservation of our Republican model of government is placed in the hands of the people.

Let us prove that our party is as worthy as in the past by voting for all the Republican candidates on November 6.

Patriotism stands in every man's door way.

A vote for the whole Republican ticket will support the boys in the trenches.

Every vote for the boys on the Republican ticket means we are upholding the efforts of the boys at the cantonments.

Vote the ballot from top to bottom for Republicanism and the boys on the border.

I can hear the sound of a harp's soft strings, as it is carried upon the air—an echo from the battlefields of Europe. The vibrations reach the ear drum and the boys in battle line are singing: "Yes, we'll rally round the flag, boys, we'll rally once again, shouting the battle cry of freedom—a challenge to the time when the G. O. P. will be in power again."

By supporting our party we pave the way for 1919 presidential election.

Down with the traitor and up with the star; that mute front door evidence of the boys at the front.

We must talk to the voters between now and November 6. Vote right from now until 1919 and the ones who fled our ranks will flock back again to the party of justice, liberty, freedom and real Democracy—that which is our own, where we elect our sovereign ruler by indirect vote of the people.

We must turn out and vote. Then in 1919 each one of us can say: "I came, I saw I conquered."

When the boys come marching back again, they will be welcomed by the Republican party of temperance, justice, mere patriotism and heroism—the real life of the homes of the mothers of men.

God bless the G. O. P.—the party of the people, for the people, by the people—the real breeder of true democracy, the party of liberty and freedom always.

Patriotically yours,
FRANK P. CHORPENING

AUTO OVERTURNS INJURING TWO OCCUPANTS

A most serious automobile accident took place between Wallacetown and Blue Ball yesterday afternoon in which the participants, who are well known young people were painfully injured.

John Dale, of Johnstown and who has business interests in this vicinity was driving the car in which Miss Caroline Stott of Brinsbin, Miss Laura Bailey of Clearfield and Miss Pearl McMurray of Clearfield were riding. They left Clearfield late in the afternoon for Philipsburg on a pleasure ride.

On the flat between Wallacetown and Blue Ball, Miss Stott took the wheel to pilot the machine along the highway but lost control on the slippery road and the machine suddenly swerved and capsized pinning the occupants to the ground. Miss Bailey and Mr. Dale were extricated from the wreckage with some difficulty.

Miss Stott, aside from being shaken up and frightened was not injured. Miss McMurray was bruised and shocked so that she is unable to follow her work today. Miss Bailey is in the Clearfield Hospital badly bruised and with three ribs broken. Whether there are more serious internal injuries has not yet been determined but it is hoped and thought that nothing more serious will develop. Mr. Dale is a patient at the Cottage hospital at Philipsburg.

Inquiry at both hospitals this afternoon elicited the information that both victims of the accident are improving.

Whooping Cough Takes 152 Lives In Month

Birth in State Exceed Deaths by nearly Nine Thousand

Harrisburg, Nov. 5.—Whooping cough played a Kaiser-like part among Pennsylvania children last August and took 152 lives, according to figures given out today by the State Department of Health. The number is larger than the usual monthly toll from this disease. Another disease which many parents regard lightly—measles—took 114 lives during the same month. Diphtheria, viewed as a cold weather ailment rather than one of summer, killed 97. Twenty-one deaths occurred from infantile paralysis. Total deaths were 16,733 during the month and births were 19,499.

LARGE INCREASE IN ATTENDANCE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Personal work and General Advertising done Results in more People at Bible Study

COMMITTEE IS PLEASED

Go To Sunday School Day was a rousing success in our city. The work of the canvassers was not in vain. In every home in Clearfield yesterday morning there was a memory of the visit of the people who were on the invitation committee to ask people to come to Sunday school. Hundreds of people responded to the invitation. The campaign for a larger Sunday school attendance was most thoroughly prepared and carried out. In addition to the personal solicitation the general committee of all the Sunday schools wisely took up the matter of newspaper support and advertising and used a page advertisement in each Clearfield daily paper.

Helped Elsewhere

Members of the General Committee will be glad to know that their newspaper advertising helped in other communities throughout the county. The Progress which has a circulation of approximately fourteen hundred copies in surrounding towns learns today of the effect of the page of advertising on Sunday schools throughout the county. Each place we have inquired report an increased attendance and much comment on the new idea of advertising the best business in the world—the King's Business.

It will be of interest to local people to learn that the Go-To-Sunday-School Day movement was started in the state of Kentucky two years ago by the Rev. Dr. George A. Jordan, Secretary of the Kentucky Sabbath School Association, whose daughter is the wife of A. Harry Lee, Jr., of Clearfield.

We append a few figures on local Sunday school attendance:

West Side Methodist church attendance 116, is usually about 315.

Trinity Methodist attendance 600, is usually about 555.

English Lutheran attendance 254, is usually about 195.

Presbyterian attendance 487, is usually about 325.

Baptist attendance 102, is usually about 85.

Eleventh Street Methodist attendance 266, is usually about 175.

Parade Baptist attendance 46, is usually about 35.

St. Andrew P. E. attendance 59, is usually about 48.

United Brethren attendance 147, is usually about 115.

STATE POLITICS OF LITTLE OR NO INTEREST

Pittsburg, However, Has a Hot Mayoralty Contest to be Fought Out Tomorrow

CENTRE COUNTY TAKES PRIZE

Harrisburg, Nov. 5.—Pennsylvania voters tomorrow will elect 26 common pleas judges; three orphans' court judges; twenty-two associate, or lay, judges; mayors and councilmen in fifteen cities; councilmen and other officials, but no mayor, in the other twenty-one cities, and hundreds and hundreds of local officials of all sorts. In numerous cases, however, "election" will be merely nominal. Many candidates have no opposition and the election will be simply a ratification of the primary vote.

For by-elections, this year has created unusual interest because of the hot municipal fights in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton. The contests in those cities have resolved themselves mainly into fights between the Penrose-McNichol and Bruunbaugh-Vare factions for control of the Republican organization. Results in those cities may go far toward indicating what is likely to happen in next spring's primaries. Harrisburg and some other cities have similar fights but with lines not so tightly drawn.

Philadelphia and Lancaster are the only cities electing councilmen by the old ward system. All other cities elect at large. The new third class city of Bethlehem will elect its first city government tomorrow. Important bond issues go before voters in numerous districts.

Twelve common pleas judge candidates are unopposed, and one orphans' court candidate—Judge James Clark Work, Paleta. Six candidates for associate judge, seven mayoralty candidates and numerous other aspirants also are without opposition.

Clarence O. Morris, running for district attorney in Armstrong, probably holds the nomination championship. He is the candidate of the Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Prohibition and Washington parties with no other nominees. Several candidates in different counties have the same sort of a cinch but haven't quite so many nominations.

Centre county is another leader of the league. It has nothing to elect but two jury commissioners and has only two candidates. Cameron has five officials to elect and has only one candidate for each.

Some of the very hot fights probably will not be settled until the soldier vote comes home. Commissioners appointed by the governor are on the ground in all concentration camps which have Pennsylvania soldiers; other commissioners have gone "over there" to take the vote right out of the trenches. It is said that there are about 60,000 Pennsylvania voters in the volunteer and national armies.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The Supreme Court today declared unconstitutional the Louisville, Kentucky, ordinance which segregated the negroes from the whites. Similar ordinances in Baltimore, St. Louis, Richmond and other cities will be affected. The Kentucky state court ruling was reversed. The court held that the ordinance was invalid because it was arbitrary to certain classes of citizens. The situation is serious, but the court, however, is powerless to remedy conditions, the court said.

TOWN EVACUAT'D WHEN BIG PLANT IS BLOWN UP

New Kensington Aluminum Powder Plant Wrecked with Large List of Killed and Injured

MADE GOODS FOR THE ALLIES

New Kensington, Pa., Nov. 5.—With the explosion of 180,000 pounds of aluminum powder in the Aluminum Company of America's plant the whole town evacuated at noon today. The loss of many homes is expected. There is no way to fight the fire as water on it will cause the powder to explode.

The population of the town is 13,000. The casualty list among the 3,000 employees numbers 50. Several dead and a number injured.

No official of the plant will commit himself relative to the cause of the explosion. Police, however, were frank in their expression that it was a well laid plot to destroy the works.

Three distinct explosions shook the plant at nine o'clock this morning. Many of the employees were hurled from their position at work.

One man was killed outright. Two men died while being hurried to the city General Hospital. At noon two men were reported to have died at the hospital.

The name of the plant is the United States Aluminum Company, a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America. For several months bronze powder has been manufactured in the plant for the United States and her allies to be used for star-shells which are used at night by the belligerents to light up No Man's and the surrounding country on the fighting front.

FORD MACHINE TAKES FIRE

A real little near-thing occurred at the Court House corner this morning about ten o'clock.

Mr. J. S. Hoyt cranked up his little "Lizard" and was about to travel when the flames began to shoot out of the engine hood in all directions. Dirt and dirt thrown on the flames were of no avail. Finally a hand fire extinguisher was brought from McKin's store and soon had the fire under control.

The machine was not damaged and living up to the general reputation of the make, after cleaning out the dust and dirt was cranked and went on its way.

SHERIFF—Wesley P. Norris, of Clearfield Borough.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY—John C. Arnold, of DuBois.

JURY COMMISSIONER—Carl Anderson, Cooper Twp.

CORONER—Dr. J. I. Pollum, DuBois

Take this tip from father: When Republican corporation men and total abstainers find a reason to support a "wet" Democratic candidate for Burgess there is "something rotten in Denmark."

PREPARE FOR TAX PAYMENTS

Two Liberty Loans have been floated with no inconvenient dislocation in the world of finance. Within five months the country has poured five billions into the Treasury without raising the fiscal temperature. This is due in no small measure to the accommodations which banks have so freely given to the purchasers of Liberty Bonds, enabling many of them to pay for their bonds over a period of several months. Next June, however, when the income and other special taxes of the new revenue bill become due, a sum equal to one-half of these two loans will have to be provided and paid in practically all at once. If any provision being made for that contingency?

There is every indication that the Republican candidates are going to win tomorrow from Burgess of Clearfield up to the office of District Attorney and Sheriff.

Messrs. Arnold, Norris and Chase have put up an admirable campaign. They have worked unceasingly, none of them depending in the least on any corporate influence, organization or institution to put them across. All of them have made an effort to see every voter in this County and they have succeeded to a greater degree than any other candidate ever has.

There has been no underhanded stories circulated by these parties or their supporters. In fact they have squelched several of those on their rounds among the voters. There has been no "cash fund" to put these candidates into office to be the tool of any individual or interest.

The voters generally have admired their pluck and persistence. It is not an uncommon thing to hear a voter say that they are going to vote for Norris because he has worked hard enough to deserve the job. It is a common thing to hear a voter say that Arnold is his man because he has the ability and the backbone to fill the office of District Attorney.

The voters of Clearfield are going to support John M. Chase for Burgess because they do not want a factional Government. In Chase's opponent is a Democrat but belongs to a faction of the Democratic party that has no more time for the other faction in that party than they have for a Republican. The Burgess has many offices to fill by appointment and it would be a dangerous thing indeed to have out-of-control offices filled with members of any one faction. If the Democratic party was united in Clearfield it would be quite a different thing.

With Mr. Chase as Burgess all factions and parties will be represented in appointments because with him it will be a case of good men instead of factional loyalty.

FOR SHERIFF

The Workingman's Candidate

To the Voters of Clearfield County:

In this closing of a heated campaign I desire to advise the voters what I stand for in public life and as a citizen.

FIRST—I stand for everything that marks the good citizen in private and public affairs.

SECOND—I stand for the perpetuity of this government, ready to assist in its defense and support the President, but I abhor the idea exploded in the public address of the Democratic county chairman, that voting for Mr. Gorman for sheriff is a paramount obligation that the citizen owes the President. Such assumption belittles and reflects upon the high office, which should know no politics in time of war, but measure every man by his loyalty and his fealty to the flag of our country. I appeal to the judgment of those who have known my family if we have ever been slackers when duty calls.

THIRD—I stand on the broad principle of equal rights to all, and special privileges to none. The poor man looks as good to me as the rich; the laboring man looks as good to me as the professional man, and the free and full discharge of every duty, unincumbered by caste, clique or the sinister motives of men, shall be my highest ambition.

The above principles constitute my platform, and I leave it to the good citizens of Clearfield county for judgment. I close the fight without enmity towards any one. I have uttered no harsh words, or criticized those who have opposed me; I have tried to be fair and hope I have made you my friend and I ask for your support—and "with charity for all and malice towards none," I submit my candidacy to your care and keeping.

Sincerely yours,

WESLEY P. NORRIS.

Ribbons in Afternoon Gowns

Many things are premeditated and by several authorities in style, all acting together, to create a fashion. Others just happen when some original and independent designer has an inspiration and works it out without regard to what other designers are doing. Once presented a good idea is seized and made much of and this is what has happened this season in the ribbon-trimmed gowns. Some one used wide braided ribbon in a stunning narrow-of-honor gown, and while more ribbon to drape the net dress of a debutante, and set the ball rolling. Now afternoon as well as evening dresses employ ribbons in their clever makeup.

A beautiful afternoon dress in which plain satin ribbon plays the most important part, shows that a good designer has recognized that there is a fashion in the use of ribbon. The ribbon is used in a variety of ways, and these are shown in the illustrations. The ribbon is used in a variety of ways, and these are shown in the illustrations. The ribbon is used in a variety of ways, and these are shown in the illustrations.

Child's Hat.

Decidedly original and charming is a child's hat in the de negro, with a touch of diminutive meshwork in the crown. The hat is fitted close to the head, and these show the arrangement, beyond the ordinary of their making.

The Hat-Brim.

It is not a hat for any woman that is the hat of the future. It is a hat that is the hat of the future. It is a hat that is the hat of the future. It is a hat that is the hat of the future.

STOP PAYING OUT SO MUCH MONEY

Court House figures show almost $5000 paid out in extra counsel fees by the present District Attorney in addition to the handsome salary of several thousand dollars which he has received.

ARNOLD WILL STOP IT

His platform rings true. It is straight to the point on every issue. It can no longer be said that his platform is not known and that he may continue to hire extra attorneys. Here is his signed statement. Read it.

To The Voters of Clearfield County:--

The issues of the District Attorney fight are too well known to be affected by the statement of any candidate.

And whether the present District Attorney is entitled to two terms does not rest on the records of the District Attorneys for the past forty years, but on the record of the office holder running for re-election.

I have lived in Duois for a quarter of a century. During that time I have tried to make my word good, and to be square.

If I am elected District Attorney I give my word:—

That I will not be subservient to, or in any degree controlled by any man or men, or any clique, faction or organization.

That I go into office unpledged on any matter, or upon the conduct of the duties of that office.

That I, myself, will be District Attorney. That I will not at the tax payers' expense employ lawyers to do the work for which I am paid, nor will I have Assistant District Attorneys appointed either by the case or by the year.

That my election to the office of District Attorney shall constitute a contract between me and the people, by the terms of which the District Attorney is bound to act for the common good of all, and to do himself the work for which he is paid. No extra expense should, or will be put upon the other party to the contract without its consent. To place upon the people such extra expense as for the District Attorney to raise his own salary, already generously fixed at $3023.00 per year. In the past four years this raise of salary has amounted to over $1200.00 each year, or two-fifths of the yearly salary fixed by law. If the law intended the yearly salary to be two-fifths larger, the Act of Assembly would so provide.

If a farmer takes a horse to be shod he expects to pay the blacksmith to do the job. He should not have to pay several more blacksmiths called in to help out. The man who takes the job should see it through.

In conclusion I want to say that I have conducted my campaign in a manner that is both clean and fair. And that no printed or spoken word of mine has injected personalities therein, nor savored of throwing mud.

(Signed) JOHN C. ARNOLD.

Best of all, a vote for John Arnold tomorrow is a vote for a man who can do the job and will do the job. He has the ability, the courage and the determination to go through with anything he tackles.

He is your candidate.

The diphtheria quarantine on our Sunday Schools was lifted yesterday, but that it will take some time for them to resume their work fully was shown by the diminished attendance yesterday. There are some faithful scholars having records of 1, 2, 3, 5, 8 and 10 years of uninterrupted attendance. Yesterday was World's Temperance essay for which one of the appropriate illustrations used was the following poem from the Sunday School Times, entitled "Let Me Alone":

"Let me alone," said the hag to the beast,
"Your blood is so rich I'm having a feast.
I want to enjoy this privilege now
Of feeding on you without any cost."
"Let me alone,"

"Let me alone," said the flea to the man,
"I want to get out of you all that I can."
"I want to get out of you all that I can,"
The fatter you get the better for me,"
Said the wicked and heartless parasite flea.
"Let me alone,"

"Let me alone," says the saboteur parasite,
"To the state's great riches I've surely a right,
Since I pay big license, to take all I can
Of the money and life blood of every man."
"Let me alone,"

"Let me alone," did I hear you say?
The loss is too great for the tax you pay.
You're worthless and worse, you're lying in wait!
I'll vote you, I'll vote you out of the land."

George Laing resumed his duties at the P. H. & L. tannery this morning after an absence of several weeks due to an accident in which he had two fingers of the right hand badly hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson of Jersey Shore, spent the week with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Addelman of the South Side. Mr. Robinson took advantage of hunting season while here and left Saturday for home with his share of game.

Owing to the development of new diphtheria cases during the past week the public schools of Curwensville will not be opened before November 12th by order of the Board of Directors.

As a patriotic privilege and duty the ladies of the community are requested to register with Mrs. W. K. Kistetter at her home on Fifth street on Tuesday or Thursday afternoon during the month of November. Governor Brough has urged that this registration be completed this month.

The War Camp Community Recreation Fund campaign of the Curwensville Board of Trade was inaugurated last evening. Plans were laid for the raising of Curwensville's quota of $100.00. It was decided to hold a public entertainment for our soldiers which will be held at the camp. The program was completed by the Army and Navy Departments with the cooperation of the Board of Trade. The entertainment will be held at the soldiers' camp and will be held on the 10th.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cleanse the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS

Camp Grant
October 28th

Dear Sister:
Will now try and drop you a few lines. I received your letter today and was very glad to hear from you. Well it was a very nice day here except it was quite muddy in some places, as it has been raining, and snowing all week.

Your letter found me feeling as fine as a fiddle and hope you are well.

I suppose it is hard to get along at home without me there to "run" things, is it not? Now you can see how it goes and when I do come back you will know enough to listen to me and appreciate my government. Eh?

Well, I am getting to like army life more and more every day. I hear lots of them complaining, saying if they were out, they would stay out, nix for me. I am here to stay until they are through with me. I sure have a good time here.

Yesterday I was in a boxing match and feel fine over it. I boxed six rounds. We have good instructors here, and when they pick a man for athletics, he dare not say "no." I went out on Friday, and came out on top twice, but the third man got me. We are organizing another foot ball team and when we get to a warmer climate we will have a baseball team too, so you might know, I am right in it. I am on the athletic committee from our county. I think I told you, I received all the things you sent. Tell mother many thanks. I don't suppose you will get any rabbit or pheasant to eat now, will you? Is Dad figuring on going deer hunting yet? I suppose not, for it is still a month yet.

I wouldn't mind having the graphophone but I get to play a good Victrola whenever I please at the Y. M. C. A. and they have all the latest pieces, too.

I don't know whether I told you before, that I didn't have to hand those names for knitting as I left Co. E that day. I have my winter uniform now, except my overcoat. Did I tell you about the shoes they gave us? They are hob-nailed, and steel plated, regular marching shoes. I haven't done much drilling lately. They have been drilling us in wig wagging lately. I have that down so fine, that they put me to drilling some of the rest. I learned it as quick as I did my A. B. C's. Maybe quicker, I don't know. They haven't given us guns or pistols yet and I don't know whether we will carry them or not. In fact I don't know what our company is for.

I suppose you are all busy at home now. Had a letter from Keppy yesterday. They are all well. Haven't heard from Frank for about two weeks. Don't know why he doesn't write. Well, I haven't been out of camp for two weeks as my funds are rather low and you never can tell when pay day is in the army. It isn't time yet tho. Did you press my clothes and put everything away? I must close now, hoping to hear from you again soon. Love to all.
Your brother,
BLAKE SHUGARTS

Camp McClellan, Ala.,

Dear ladies of the Winbude Red Cross:

Just a few words to thank you for the comfort bag which I received last Tuesday, but have been too busy to write and thank you for before today. It is a wonderful bag and I have seen quite a few from other states but mine is different from the rest and I hope you won't think I am boasting when I say it is the best. The Red Cross is doing some wonderful work to help the soldier and I think every soldier appreciates what is being done for him.

I am working in the base hospital here as a ward master, but expect to go to France as soon as the Red Cross sends enough nurses here to take care of the patients. We have a little over five hundred men, sick or disabled, in the hospital now and so far we have had only two men die, one from spinal meningitis and the other from typhoid fever. A pretty good record for a company of green recruits like myself, because out of one hundred and thirty men only seventeen have had any medical experience. I have charge of the tubercular ward and what I know about that disease you will fill a very small space. I don't even know the correct way to speak it.

Well I guess I have written as much as I can so will close, thinking you again for my bag. I remain for your favors.
Gratefully yours,
PRIVATE T. C. GILES

day evening. There is a Y. M. C. A. here with everything to make it nice for we soldier boys.

I have heard the governor of Virginia speak, also the governor of West Virginia, since I came down here.

I have been on guard at night. We were allowed 24 hours rest after each time, so we do not drill today. It did not affect me much, except made me a little sore. I am a full fledged soldier of Uncle Sam now.

I would like to come home for Christmas but don't suppose I can. I have tried to obey orders with. I have not missed a roll call, and a great sight to see the army in this camp.

It is almost time for the lights to go out at 9:00 and at 11:15 all is quiet. Remember me to Mr. and Mrs. Kephart and also Joseph and all my friends. With love to you both.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grand-mother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces a soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Fire Prevention Day!

Less Than a Year Ago The Clearfield Opera House Block
Burned---A Warning Beacon Against Carelessness

Men who were ruined in the big fires of Philipsburg, DuBois, Woodland, Grampian and other towns in this locality couldn't see how such conflagrations could be---but carelessness and calamity combined and they resulted.

Are you doing your part toward fire prevention?---a blaze that wipes out a building or a few blocks and destroys your property is just as bad for you as a whole town in ashes.

Let Fire Prevention Day remind you to see to it that your premises do not invite fire, and that if fire comes you are fully protected.

You Pay For "Carelessness" of Others

Every fire in this section costs you money. You pay your share of the "other fellows" fire loss---and he pays a share of yours---in Clearfield, Woodland, Curwensville, Philipsburg and every town in this section.

Yet fire insurance rates in this section have been lowered on an average of one-fourth since 1893. You can help bring them down.

Don't wait for an inspector. Do your own inspecting. Look in your basement---your attic---your storerooms---your shipping rooms---and wherever rubbish might accumulate. Clean it out, or order it removed.

Are You Properly Insured Against Fire?

In spite of all past experiences fires continue. There is an average of three hundred fires a year in this section.

Have you re-valued your property and revised your fire insurance? Do you know that it will cost you far more than the first cost to replace many things you own?

In other words, now that your property is worth more, does your insurance show it? Conservative business judgment suggests that adequate fire loss protection is as important as fire prevention.

IF BACK HURTS
BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your Kidneys Occasionally If
You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headache, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and to stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Miss Mary Mariana and Peter Lippert were married at ten o'clock this morning in the St. Francis Catholic Church by Father M. A. Ryan.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin and lace and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

After the wedding the guests departed to the bride's home where there was a sumptuous repast prepared and a fine celebration for the young couple.

The bride and groom are both estimable residents of Clearfield and are wished much happiness in their new life.

CHRIST CONQUEROR

Ultimate Victory Will Crown the World Work of the Son of God.

"He went forth conquering and to conquer."—Rev. 6:2.

Time was when the church dwelt almost exclusively upon the sufferings and sorrows of Christ, and overlooked his majesty and glory. It thought of him as the lamb of God, and forgot to think of him as "the lion of the tribe of Judah;" it thought of him as a weary man before his foes, and forgot to think of him as a mighty conqueror, who possesses invincible power. In the book of Revelation he is represented in the latter aspect. He is not represented as coming to his kingdom. He is already a king. On his head are many crowns. Once he was scornfully rejected by the people, who cried, "The Crucified! may his name and memory be blotted out." Now everything is changed. He rides forth "conquering and to conquer."

To this vision of Christ it behooves us to turn in the present day when the larger portion of the world is convulsed by fightings without and fears within. He is the one upon whom the hopes of humanity center; the one who is at the head of the forces which makes for the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth.

He is represented as taking the aggressive. Not satisfied with acting on the defensive, he goes forth. His army is not one of occupation, but of aggression. His presence as its leader and commander is inspiring. Someone has said that an army of sheep would have been formidable led by Napoleon; for he would have transformed them into lions. So we, catching the spirit of our leader, became heroic, and go forth with him to meet the great world struggles without fear.

He goes forth to conquer. This idea is put in the strongest possible form, "conquering and to conquer;" that is, victory succeeding victory. He triumphs over all oppositions, but not at once. Many a fierce struggle is called for before the forces of evil are vanquished. But the cause of righteousness will win in the end.

We follow a leader who has never been beaten. He came into this world to destroy the power of sin. It was a gigantic struggle, and at first he seemed to be baffled. Looked at from the human point of view his death was a failure; but it was in reality a victory. By it he vanquished sin and death.

Through all his earthly life he was a victor. He conquered disease; he ruled the forces of nature; he cast out evil spirits; he delivered men from the power of evil. Never once did he go down to defeat. The work of conquest which he began upon earth he is now carrying on with greater power.

The power by which Christ conquers is the same as that by which he conquered when here in the flesh. He conquers by the power of truth and love. His weapon of conquest is the cross.

In the epistle to the Hebrews Jesus is represented as making "one sacrifice of sin forever," and then sitting down at God's right hand, "from henceforth expecting until his enemies be made his footstool" (Chap. 10:12-13). His expectation of coming victory was based upon his sacrifice for sin. He knew of no greater power than the cross. It was the highest revelation of divine suffering, redeeming love, consummated. No greater power unto salvation can be brought to bear upon the hearts of men. It is God's utmost.

This is the weapon which we today are to wield in the battle for righteousness. "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but spiritual." They may appear to be feeble, but they are "mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds." The cross is no failure. Following the crucified we follow a conquering king.—Rev. James M. Campbell, D. D.

CHRIST'S SUPREME SACRIFICE

His Earthly Life, Strong and Beautiful, Was a Journey Toward Death on the Cross.

Our Lord's life on earth, strong and beautiful though it was, was really at the same time his procedure toward death. He lived as one laying down his life, not merely in one great sacrifice at the close, but from step to step along his whole earthly history. With no touch of the morbid or the fanatical, yet his course, in practice, had to be one of self-improvement, of loneliness, of acquaintance with energetic hostility of sin and sinners. It had to be so if it was to be faithful. He knew not where to lay his head; he endured the contradiction of sinners against himself; he came unto his own, and his own received him not. Even his friends, whom he loved, and who loved him in their imperfect way, did not love him wisely or magnanimously, and constantly became occasions of temptation which had to be resisted. Pain and trial were the inevitable characters of the work given him to do. It lay in his calling to put a strong and faithful negative on the natural desire for safety, for happiness, for congenial society and surroundings, for free and unembarrassed life. All this he had steadily to postpone to a period beyond the grave, and meanwhile make his way to the final crisis, at which, under a mysterious burden of extreme sorrow, accepted as the Savior's proper portion, he died for our sins.—Robert Baly.

There is one United States senator who does not take himself as seriously as some of his colleagues take themselves. This is evident from a remark he made in the cloakroom one day. MOODS OF WARTIME

How the Psalmist Voices Comfort, Cheer, Strength and Courage to Human Heart.

"Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee."—Ps. 4:22.

It is one of the marks of the inspiration of the Psalms that we turn quite naturally to their splendid phrases to find expression for our deepest thoughts. When our hearts are stirred, the right words do not always come to us. But we find them in the Psalter. And, if I mistake not, there is in the words of the fifty-fifth Psalm a quite extraordinary appropriateness to our thoughts in these great days of alternate hope and fear, and anger and grief, and pride and patience. It is a Psalm for time of war; it is war that the Psalmist had in his thoughts. And it seems to express the varying moods which we observe in our neighbors, and of which we are half conscious in ourselves, as we try to keep our mental sanity, our Christian faith. The Psalm begins and ends with prayer, for it is the outpouring of his heart's desires by a godly man; but he passes through various phases of thought as he prays—some worthy of the highest Christian saintliness—some not so worthy, for he had the weaknesses common to our poor humanity.

"Hear my prayer." So he begins. It is the inevitable petition of an unquiet soul. "Hear my prayer." But the singer is afraid, for the danger is near. "The ungodly cometh on so fast; they are minded to do some mischief, so maliciously are they set against me." He is faithless, he doubts the ultimate issue. "My heart is disquieted within me—fearfulness and trembling are common upon me." And he would fain escape from the horror and misery of it all. "Oh, for the wings of a dove, for then would I flee away and be at rest. I would get me away far off . . . to the wilderness, if need be. 'I would make haste to escape.' " "Oh, for the wings of a dove!" The words, when set to the luscious music of Mendelssohn, charm the ear, and they find a response in that desire for peace and rest which is the emotion of every tender and kindly heart. "Oh, for the wings of a dove!" Yet that is not the Christian attitude to the stern realities of life. It is a mood through which our thoughts may pass. But it is an unworthy mood. It is not the mood of faith, and another Psalm tells us so. "In the Lord I put my trust; how say ye then to my soul that she should flee as a bird unto the hill?"

And so we pass on to the best thought of all—the thought which is the true key to the brave old Psalmist's courage and hope. With it he begins—"Hear my prayer," for that is the prayer of faith as well as the prayer of fearfulness. To it he passes on—"As for me, I will call upon God, and the Lord shall save me. In the evening and morning and at noonday will I pray, and that instantly; and he shall hear my voice." For this is the mood of prayer, of the consecration of all high endeavor, of the hallowing of pain. "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee." Here is no counsel for a weakling or a craven, but of a brave man who has faced the worst. "Cast thy burden upon the Lord." It does not mean that we shall leave the part of danger to others, and rest in security the while, craven-hearted. It is not to sing, "Oh, for the wings of a dove, that there may be a way of escape." Nor does it mean that, as we fight, we curse the while. To fight without cursing in the cause of righteousness is to follow in the steps of the great Captain of the Christian soul. And so it means that we shall best fortify our spirits by prayer.

And for us all, even while our hearts leap as we read of the deeds done by those of our own blood and speech—for us all, the Psalmist's message is, "Cast thy burden upon the Lord." This is his final mood; this is the issue of his thought. Cast thy burden here. Thus only can we stay the throbbing of our pulse and anchor our souls upon a rock. The way may be long before we reach the end of the journey. It must be a way of pain. But the way of the Cross is the way of light. And this is the way of the great crusade.—By the Archbishop of Dublin.

HER HANDS MADE BEAUTIFUL
An Old Legend That Reveals That the True Source of Beauty Is in the Heart.
There is an old legend concerning three young women, who disputed as to who had the most beautiful hands. One dipped her hands into the pure running stream, another picked berries until her fingers were pink, a third gathered roses until her hands were made sweet by their fragrance. An aged woman, careworn and decrepit, leaning upon her staff, came, asking a gift, but all alike refused her. A fourth young woman, making no claims to beauty, ministered to her needs. The aged woman then said: "It is not the hand that is dipped in the brook nor the hand made red with berries, nor the hand garlanded or perfumed with roses, that is most beautiful, but the hand that giveth to the poor." As she thus spoke, her mask fell off, her staff was cast aside, her wrinkles vanished, and she stood before them, an angel of God. . . . It matters not whether the hand gives in money, or in kindly acts; in some cases money would be quite useless, while kindness is priceless.—Selected.

FOUND NEW USE FOR PULPIT

Sexton's Wife Was Greatly Excited When Parson Arrived Unexpectedly to Hold Services.

Canon Shearme, in his "Lively Recollections," tells a good story of a brother clergyman in a remote parish who turned up unexpectedly to hold a service at one of two churches he served in. Grantly to the reverend gentleman's surprise, the sexton's wife who acted as caretaker, appeared great and by his unexpected advent on the scene, begging him if he must hold the service that day at all events to forego the sermon.

Naturally he inquired the reason why.

"Therupon," writes Mr. Shearme, "the old woman became more vehement and excited."

"Passon, passon, dear, if you must preach, will you preach from the readin' desk?"

"But why?" asked he. "Is there anything in the pulpit?"

"Aw durn me! Passon dear, don't ee go near it whatever. Oh, why did you ever come today?"

"She clung desperately to his coat tails, beseeching him to go no farther. 'Come, Sally, I insist upon seeing what is in the pulpit!'"

"Well, passon—but there, I don't hardly know how to tell ee. Well, passon, if you must know, I've got the turkey 'en in the pulpit, and he wunt 'atch out afore next Sunday!"

TELLING TIME AS YOU RUN

Nashville (Tenn.) Has Installed Clock for Those Who Wait Till Last Minute to Get Anywhere.

If you are in the habit of being late for work, or are in the habit of waiting for the last minute in which to catch your train, you know how you scan the corner clocks as you fly by.

Nashville, Tenn., appreciated the need of an efficient timepiece that could be seen at considerable distance, so that instead of having the usual circular dial with revolving hands the time is shown by white figures, 28 inches high, mounted on endless flexible bands, which move across the face of the clock, changing every 60 seconds. These figures show at a greater distance and are read much quicker than the hands of an ordinary clock. At night the figures are illuminated.

It is operated by a system of weights, aggregating several hundred pounds, which are automatically wound up by electrical power. There were many mechanical difficulties to confront and to be solved on original lines, for this clock as it is has had no predecessor.

Napoleon's Divorce.

Napoleon's divorce, a civil act of the empire, was pronounced before the grand council held in the Tuilleries on December 15, 1808, and the next day the senate confirmed it. To remove all religious scruples, the court of the bishop of Paris met and pronounced the divorce with Josephine null, this action being taken on January 14, 1810. The civil marriage of Bonaparte and Maria Louisa of Austria, April 1, 1810, was witnessed by the college of cardinals, save only two who were too infirm to be brought to Paris. The attitude of the church was manifest at the religious marriage. Not a cardinal was present, although they said that their absence was an empty form due only to the circumstances that Pius VII had not approved the divorce.
